

LW AUFKLARUNGSSCHWADRON HISTORY

Player: Walter “Caesar” Moore

This force is meant to represent a generic German Aufklarungs force in the Spring/Early Summer of 1944. I have modeled it with a good many of the troops wearing higher-quality greenish Feldgrau jackets, as well as the original shields on the helmets—I want them to look like they’ve had it good up until now with easy rear-echelon duty in France.

On their bases are poppies, pansies, and daffodils, all in season in France at this time.

One Marder has a picnic tablecloth hastily thrown up onto it as the unit has been unexpectedly called into action. Many of the other vehicles are in their original Panzer Grey, since they have spent time in the area since 1940 patrolling for partisans or simply training.

Will their vacation end facing an Anglo-American invasion, or is it their destiny to be sent with their division marching East? Only the match-ups will tell us.
